Collaboration in the International WalRights Initiative e. V. (I-WR-I)

You can work at I-WR-I in the following areas:

- Human rights education (kindergartens and schools):

The work in the field of human rights education includes conceptual work to integrate human rights as an integral part of the curriculum in schools and kindergartens.

Another area of activity in human rights education is the work at schools and day-care centres in order to integrate human rights through workshops and projects

- Website:

Over time, the website will increasingly become a kind of encyclopedia of human rights articles and topics of human rights. The work refers to the further development of the website as well as the content of the website.

- Human Rights Articles:

The human rights articles are presented in child-friendly language and illustrated with individual examples for young people. (the idea of the presentation can be found in short form described on the website)

- Human rights issues:

In it, human rights-related topics, such as street children, health, refugees, etc. are described within a kind of essay in child-friendly language, as well as lists of organisations that work in this area. This has the (positive) consequence that even small organisations, of which one may not have heard anything yet, come to the public, and thus the readers can find out a lot about what is going on in the world.

The work regarding the website involves a lot of research and writing to provide young readers with insights into the world of human rights.

- Human rights-related projects and campaigns:

Here you as a member can open up more and decide what you would like to do as projects. We have only recently adapted the statutes, which will allow us to carry out research projects in the field of human rights from next year (2022).

Without research there is no education.

- Support in conflict situations (for members who have certain training)

Among other things, we work with mediators to support children and young people in finding a way out of the conflict situation with other people. The work in this field would be for those who are trained in certain areas and have expertise in the field of disputes and conflicts to support the children and young people.

The work that can be done here in the organisation is very extensive. We also have several social media channels that also need to be maintained, etc. It is enormously important to us that the members – whether new or old – have opportunities for further development within the organisation.
